Every single member of Karuna has lost a loved one to a violent trauma, and has dealt with the physical aftermath personally. Karuna Professional Services was born out of a desire to spare other survivors the second trauma of having to clean up after an event like these.

When a trauma incident occurs, it's dangerous for anyone who is not a trained professional to come in contact with any of the contaminants left behind. We're specifically trained to handle this situation and dispose of all waste in a lawful manner.

Karuna's emphasis centers on operating with compassion, respect, and discretion. We are solidly dedicated to safety, meticulous standards, and sustainable development.

We also provide restoration services so that when our work is complete, there will be no appearance of an incident having taken place.

How We Can Help...

Oftentimes people don't call professionals for help following a traumatic incident. They think it's too much hassle, they don't know how the process works, or they don't know that homeowners insurance is an option.

- In most cases, homeowners insurance covers our services.
- We work directly with your insurance company to collect payment beyond any deductible.
- If you don't have insurance or are a renter, we'll work with a victim's assistance group or with your landlord.
